Day 29

To you, O Lord, I call. For fire has devoured the pastures of the wilderness, and flame has burned all the trees of the field. Joel 1:19 (ESV)

Have you ever felt that EVERYTHING precious to you was gone, devoured, burned up, never to return? It is amazing how many people have felt that way, and even more so how many feel that way right now. Many feel their plans have utterly failed, and their hope is dead. How much are you willing to trust in your own perceptions, your own analysis of your situation? Why not get another opinion before accepting your own prognosis of "hopeless"? What does God say? Call to Him, search the Scriptures, and then decide whom you will believe. Let trust in God become your "Plan A". There is no Plan B.
